Crocodiles in Madagascar

Crocodiles are large reptiles that have been living on Earth for millions of years. Because they have been around for so long, they have sometimes been called ‘living dinosaurs’. These amphibious animals make both land and (1) _____ water their home. But now, scientists believe that crocodiles may live (2) _____ somewhere else – deep beneath the earth in Madagascar!

Madagascar is one of the most remarkable places on Earth. This very large island broke away from the rest of the continent of Africa during the age of dinosaurs. The caves where these rare crocodiles are (3) _____ supposed to live are located in Ankarana, a distant region in northern Madagascar. These unusual animals only exist in an area that isn’t very easy to get to, and tracking them down is considerably difficult.

Are there really crocodiles in the caves of Ankarana? Nobody is sure? So Dr. Brady Barr, An American herpetologist, has travelled all the way to Madagascar to (4) _____ find out. Dr. Barr is one of the world’s leading experts on crocodiles, but this is his first expedition to the African island. He’s come to discover whether or not these very rare cave crocodiles really (5) _____ exist. Gerardo Garcia, a biologist from Spain, will be joining Dr. Barr to look through the caves in which the crocodiles supposedly live.

Very (6) _____ little is known about cave crocodiles and why they may have chosen to live underground. However, in this region, poachers are always trying to kill crocodiles. The caves of Ankarana may have become the last safe place to which they can escape. Another possible (7) _____ reason that these crocodiles may have moved into caves is that they are somehow different. Are these cave crocs the same species that is found elsewhere in Madagascar? That’s a question that no one can really answer right now. Scientists have never actually (8) _____ captured one of the crocs deep in the cave. But perhaps that’s about to change...

After a long journey by helicopter, Dr. Barr joins Garcia to make the boat (9) _____ trip to the caves. As they row along the river, the two scientists remain quiet so they don’t scare the crocs away. Finally they (10) _____ reach one of the huge caves in which the crocodiles are said to live. Once they are inside, Dr. Barr talks with Garcia and their guide about the cave in which the crocodiles have been sighted, or seen. ‘So this is the “Crocodile Cave,” confirms Barr as he looks around, ‘This is where we are at.’

Задание III.

Прочитайте текст и заполните пропуски А-Е частями предложений, обозначенными цифрами 1-5. Занесите цифру, обозначающую соответствующую часть предложения, в таблицу.

After hours of (A)_____ difficult walking through the cave, the team finally exits into daylight once again. Then suddenly: ‘Whoa, whoa, whoa!’ shouts Barr as he signals for the others to stop. ‘Look! Right here! Look at this!’ he exclaims as he points to the ground. It’s another (B)_____ set of footprints! ‘Look at that! That is a big croc!’ says Barr with excitement. He looks carefully at the footprints and explains which ones they are, ‘Black left foot, right here. There’s a right. That’s front right there.’ He then looks up and points, ‘It’s going this direction.’ He stops and looks at one of the tracks again, ‘Look at this. Man, that’s enormous!’ he says in surprise. The team decides to measure the footprint; it’s about 13 inches long. That means that this particular crocodile is (C)_____ about the size of a car!

The team continues and sees signs of crocodiles everywhere, including more footprints and marks from their long tails. The group stops again, and Dr. Barr points to the ground. He explains that the front feet of crocodiles have five toes and the back feet have only four. He then shows the others the footprints. ‘Five. One, two, three, four, five,’ he says as he counts (D)_____ the front toe marks on a track. ‘There’s a back,’ he then says as he points to (E)_____ a back foot marking, and counts the toes in order to show the team. ‘One, two, three ... only four.’

The group follows the croc tracks through the dark caves. As they walk, they move their torches from side to side in hopes of seeing one of the mysterious crocs. Then, finally, they see something – eye shining in the darkness. ‘Whoa! We’ve got an eye shine!’ says Barr with excitement. His torch has hit the eyes of a crocodile and the light has been reflected back. This creates what he calls an ‘eye shine.’ ‘Look – croc!’ cries Dr. Barr, excitedly. ‘
